Wills & Lasting Power of Attorney.

If you haven't got a Will or Lasting Power of Attorney or they're out of date, read this...

Simpler Wills. Making a Will in the UK

More than 60% of adults in the UK still do not have a Will. Are you one of them? If you haven't already made a Will, then you should read this. Because without a Will you will die intestate, which means...

The Government

Decides who gets your money and your property.

Separated Couples

Your spouse may inherit all, or a significant share, of your estate, even if you have been separated for many years.

Married Couples & Civil Partners

The law sets financial limits as to how much your spouse or civil partner can receive. As such, even though you may want 'everything' to pass to your spouse/civil partner, there is no provision to guarantee this will happen.

Inheritance Tax

The rules of intestacy make no provision for mitigating Inheritance Tax.

Children

Without a Will your children could lose everything

Couples Living Together.

The law currently makes no provision for unmarried partners to inherit anything from each other and so the surviving partner could receive nothing at all. This is regardless of whether or not you have children together.

Time & Complications

An estate can take longer to administer when a valid Will isn't in place, and without your guidance and planning, complications can occur. This can also create tensions within your family as known wishes may not be carried out.

Parents

Without a Will the authorities could be involved in deciding who will care for and raise your children.

Personal Items

Without a Will there is no guarantee who will receive those important family items.

Why is making a Will so important?

Making a Will is a selfless act. It lets your family and loved ones know what you want to happen when you are no longer here. This can help prevent arguments and rifts that could otherwise last for years. So, don't delay – call us today!

The implications of not having a Will, or not having updated your Will when circumstances change, can be costly and cause distress to your loved ones.

Lasting Power of Attorney.

Essential documents to manage your affairs

It is absolutely essential to have Lasting Power of Attorneys in place in case a person becomes unable to manage his or her own affairs due to incapacity, whether this is due to an accident or a physical or mental illness.

Without these documents and the authorisation they give, no-one, including your spouse or partner, would be able to conduct your personal affairs.

This would include paying your bills, looking after your banking, managing your investments, caring for your property, or looking after your business.

This would also include decisions about your care and the medical treatment you receive, or where you receive it.

By planning ahead and producing a Lasting Power of Attorney you are able to appoint trustworthy persons, known as Attorneys, giving them clear instructions and setting boundaries as to how they are to handle your affairs should you be unable to do so in the future.

No one can create a Power of Attorney for you, and you must create one whilst you are mentally capable of doing so.

There are two types of Lasting Power of Attorney:

Lasting Power of Attorney
(Property & Affairs)

Lasting Power of Attorney
(Health & Welfare)

Both deal with very different aspects of your affairs but are incredibly powerful documents.

Lasting Power of Attorney (Property & Affairs)

This document allows your attorney the power to make decisions about money and property for you, for example:

- ▶ Managing a bank or building society account
- ▶ Paying bills
- ▶ Collecting benefits or a pension
- ▶ Selling your home

Lasting Power of Attorney (Health & Welfare)

This document allows your attorney to make decisions about things like:

- ▶ Your daily routine, for example washing, dressing, eating
- ▶ Medical care
- ▶ Where you live
- ▶ Life-sustaining treatment

It can only be used when you're unable to make your own decisions.

What happens if I lost mental capacity without a Lasting Power of Attorney?

If you fail to create a Lasting Power of Attorney whilst you are capable then anyone who wishes to act on your behalf, including your spouse or partner, must apply through the Court of Protection, which can be a lengthy and expensive process.

Not only would you and your family have to come to terms with the upset and emotions the illness or accident creates but there would also be the added strain of dealing with officials for every decision. In the first year alone the cost of an application to the court of protection could be around £2,000. These costs can be eliminated by purchasing and producing a Lasting Power of Attorney.
